Mr Phipps has made arrangements (in accordance with our advice) to secure all that is found

It appears that you carried away the only unbroken vase by permission of the manager, but without the knowledge of Mr Phipps, who is making a collection of all the relics.

I should like to show this vase with the other things when I bring it before the Soc: of Ant:

I remain truly yours

My dear Sir

I heard of your visit to "Danes Camp" Northampton the other day.

Sir H. Dryden & I & others had been previously doing all we could to keep it off, but without avail.

the owner
General Bouverie, was out of the country & his agents - could only say that the side iron stone of the Estate had been sold to the Humber Iron Company. But Sir Henry tells me that he believes Gen. B. if so disposed, could ~~not~~ interpose to ~~the~~ reserve the Camp: - as he receives a Royalty on the is dig - not on what is not dig.

Of course in the first instance, he could have stipulated to keep the Camp.

I presume the Act is of no use (although the Camp is scheduled) as it is one of those illusory optional Acts.

- please inform me on this point.

- Pickering Phipps - M.P. for S.
Northants - the leading Manager of the Company promises to be as Conservative as he possibly can. so the fosses will be left intact, but raised up in a curious way above the surroundings.

Dear Sir

Can you tell me any one who has made a speciality of the subject of ancient-ruill stones or querns. They are always turning up here in digging for iron stone, & some of them must be, from the position in which they are found very ancient indeed.

I should be glad to investigate the subject.

Did you get a letter from me of Oct: 22 on Hunsbury or Daves Camp. Northampton?

I remain

Yours faithfully
W. S. Baker.
