AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

Gawler, June 27.

Mr. Percy Ifould, a student of the Adelaide School of Mines, lately made an interesting discovery while on a prospecting tour in the Humbug Scrub near Onetree Hill. He found an aboriginal shelter, which contained drawings of birds, reptiles, animals, tracks, birds, and other hieroglyphics. During this week Mr. J. S. Brooks, of Smithfield, accompanied by a party of gentlemen, paid a visit to the vicinity, and discovered another shelter. It is understood that Dr. Stirling and other scientists intend to make a thorough examination of the drawings. It is believed that the latter are of ancient date.

Adelaide "Advertiser" the place mentioned is ^{I think} within 50 miles of Adelaide &easily accessible. ^{from Gawler} The Register account is a little fuller & states that the shelters are in sedimentary rocks but none of the drawings can be less than 60 years old as the birds has been known to have become extinct not less than that time. Is it worth while getting some one to make drawings? Shering want to in a violent hurry to use the peace of mind I could draw John have moved for less & started off on Mondays train —

& pancha means mountain not nest

I have just finished reading the book ends at page 188 with "Wollundqua" Chapter incomplete, real good stuff well done. I shall look forward to seeing the conclusion of the chapter - If you think it worth while having copies of the Hamburg Scrap drawings I could send a Capades draughtsman from here at a cost of about £5.0.0 but of course his opinion as to their age would not be of much value

- how would I bring you etc then I must be born young before they get treated about - Of course it is more than probable that they are folded up but since they will be to
- investigated - I think name is to my surprise and in the list of Coroner's jurors but his brother is now in London

I believe that being that kind of cloud is to be seen - I believe no place here is a gathering by the Hollander with the primary water ground etc and only a few people a line but I do not know will be in London
