

B 312

Rushmore, Salisbury.

Dec. 11. 1888

Dear Mr. Creech

I enclose a letter of Mr. Farrer by which it will be seen that Mr. Farrer only received the explanatory cash book without which the audits could not be completed, on Saturday last.

I shall be obliged to you to give me your reasons for ~~thus~~ delaying the completion of the audits until the end of the year.

The matter has now been going on

from the gradual

for a number of years. Every year I have desired that I may receive the accounts completed earlier in the year, and every year you have deliberately introduced some impediment to this being done.

There could be no possible reason why the Banking Book should not have been forwarded to W. Farner at the same time or very shortly after the Account Book. I cannot regard it in any other light than a deliberate and stubborn intention on your part not to comply with my instructions in this matter. Not a year has passed without a correspondence on the subject.

As I am quite determined that my wishes shall be carried out and you appear to be equally determined that they shall not, it is better we should come to a clear understanding on the subject.

Yours truly

W. H. Peck.