Dear General Pitt Rivers

I have been down to see Mr. Rutland (the man who dug up the Saxon barrow at Taplow) who wants to realize some of his collection - He has quantities of things, mammoth remains, drift implements, as well as odds and ends of Roman things. What I thought might be of some interest to you is a small series of locks and keys mostly found in the Thames or near Taplow - If you care for them at all, I should think the simple plan would be for him to send them to you - He realizes that such things are not very saleable & would take a moderate price for them. He has also a lot of curious horse shoes some said to be Roman but I don't know whether you draw a line at these.

Ever truly
