Sir, In reply to your letter I did not so much write with the intention of finding a purchaser of the flint implements, as to get some approximate idea of their archaeological value of which I know nothing. I suspect, on account of their high finish, they belong to the later Neolithic period, but the best way will be for me to send them to you for your opinion, which I accordingly do by this parcel post.

I am,

Sir,

Yours faithfully,

W. W. Burnand.

I have no objection to part with them, but am quite unable to form an idea as to their value in a marketable point of view.

I also send two rough and probably more ancient specimens, one from Beyley in Kent. The other from this neighborhood, and a fossil from Dudley called (I am told) Neopteris Gigantea
