

see the Larmer list
up.

Japanese
One of the Arhats.

Ans.
Sept. 14/97.

13 Sept. 1897.

L1935

BRITISH MUSEUM,

LONDON: W C.

My dear General

When you get Anderson's catalogue (of which I told you) you will find the two little figures that I named Kanzan + Jitoku on pl.
20 (p. 198). An account of them opposite (No 606.) -

The 'Jeypor' figures are I am sure Japanese, & probably made at Kioto - They almost certainly represent Arhats (i.e. Buddhist saints or ascetics). of whom there are usually sixteen These also are figured in Anderson's Catalogue pl.

5 - p 46. where a detailed account of them is given - I shall always be glad to help you in these matters when I can I would try to come down any time you thought I could be of use - now that I have found the way.

I have been thinking about the future of your museum generally & will send you a note about ^{it} later, going into some detail - It is very difficult to know what is best in such a case

Yours very truly
Charles H. Reed
I am sorry not to have