Sir

I write to thank you sincerely for your kind account of the Donelson lecture, it is very interesting.

Last year in August I attempted to open a long barrow at Tarrant Rawston near Blandford
I undertook it for a meeting of the Don. Field Club, but unfortunately under the most trying circumstances, as I had strained my might am the previous week by an accident,

or was also very unusual.
I had also, three of the most incomplete
men to work for me, However, I managed to begin at the East End by digging a trench 34 ft long, or 2 1/2 deep. This was within 10 feet of the centre, but there was no further time.
I found 2 pieces of a very peculiar kind
of pottery.
My group on each side

has been prohibited
I understood by Sir Wm
Smith & Co., or the Field Club, & I consider it would be a handsome recompense, if it were not regret even doing anything at all.

I beg to remain

Sir

Yours for Old Kent
