

The Superintendent of my Boys Home & his wife thought surprised themselves at the dinner there on Tuesday. He returned delighted. I shall take him on my own to the museum. He is an intelligent man

I remain
Ever yours affectionately

My dear & kind friend I am glad to receive your kind letter, the more so that you can give so good a record of the increasing number of visitors at the Larmer and Museum, especially on Week-Days. And thus your kind heart, wishes the enjoyment of every one who can take advantage of the pleasure you afford at so great an expense to yourself & now to the written is fully satisfied.

Our views with regard to the Sunday as you have differ. but that does not make you less opposite your kind's motives. That who differ from you have no right to rate and abuse you in the way so many have done. The many accounts you have given make me indignant. The others do not want the loving spirit of Christ who spoke nothing but words of love respecting to the Scribes & Pharisees when excommunicating & baptizing brought our beloved Jesus to ignominy & the cross. At the Great Cathedral from time when there was celebrated a grand series of thanksgiving & communion with the Spire the Lambtorkef [I suppose] walked up the aisle in a scarlet mantle on his shoulders the train of which was held up by 2 boys in red frocks, & followed by about 100 clergy. The different from our Lord whose robe was one of green & his crown thorns. I got taken pleasure in meeting with the lower class. & you make them so happy among the beauties of nature & the cities of the past you have arranged for them in the museum
