

the great favour of being supplied, either by gift or purchase, with a copy of the new volume - that my set may be complete.

It is without doubt presuming, but your kindness in the past emboldens me to make this request, and more especially as I do not know any other way of obtaining the book as it cannot be procured through the booksellers. Believe me, faithfully & obediently yours,

Brooking - Rowe.

CASTLE BARBICAN,
PLYMPTON.

20 October 1895.

Sir,

The notice of the fourth volume of your valuable work in the excavations at Dunstable and elsewhere, in the new number of the Archaeological Journal, reminds me of your kindness in presenting me with copies of the previous volumes -

I venture to intrude upon your forbearance, and to ask
