

14, ST GILES,
OXFORD.

L2483

Dear Gen Pitt Rivers.

I can only send you one lock. The other is locked up by means of another a third Chenier padlock of which there is but the key & which I cannot succeed in picking

To open this depress A as shown by arrow then plate C can be drawn outwards

This allows plate D at the other end to be turned round half a revolution and then the long plate at bottom of the lock can be slid out exposing the key hole. In haste
W. W. Moseley

12483

14, ST GILES,

OXFORD.

Development of Primitive Locks + Keys.

Line 6 ~~is~~ Clou French a nail. add ?? Clout English provincial a boot nail.

Line 7. from bottom zero "to late" from zero to put. The connection between these two words in which the quantity of the e is different is very uncertain indeed. It is still more improbable that the connection if it exist lies through the meaning given namely "when the N. 15. In the first two pages several additional corrections as to Capital letters require to be made bar is put up. I have this from a very expert classic. It would probably be more judicious to omit reference to zero too late as <sup>such</sup> it is not necessary to the argument.

page 4. line 9 from bottom after "Lead" Duld a fath insert ?? Pfad German a fath.

Page 8. line 6. I can't make out the three tumbler in the Plate referred to. a word or two more of explanation in the text or explanation of the Plate might be of advantage