My dear Pitt Rivers

Although I believe you have given away your great collection of antiquities I hear that you still buy and I have some which I want to sell & if you don't care to buy them you may perhaps like to see them as I believe they are not to be beat in their way.
They are chiefly old glass, which were found in a tomb at Matthe whilst I was there. Altogether there were over 60 articles in the same tomb, mostly terra cotta vessels full of bones, but amongst them 2 of the finest glass bottles I have ever seen. There is nothing like them in the Brit: Museum or in the Museum at Naples. I gave £30 for the lot and am willing to take the same sum. They are quite thrown away with me and I want the room.

I have also some pretty glass from Halicarnapus which I will throw in with the rest. Should you care to see them it would be well to let me know when you will call although I am generally at home in the forenoon.

Believe me your very sincerely
P. Fildering
