

Cox

(L403)

Derbyshire Archæological and Natural History Society.

Editor's Address:

REV. J. CHARLES COX, LL.D.,
BARTON-LE-STREET RECTORY, MALTON, YORKS.

31 Oct 1877

Dear General Pitt-Rivers

Thank you for your kind letter about Reliquary - I have forwarded your order to publisher.

A Derbyman, who has the making of a good archaeologist in him (he is a chemist there) has been lately doing some barrow digging in an interesting part of the county near Salpicease.
He has a part of a quern which excites him much as to the exact part it is, & also a long-headed skull. He is a good deal interested in your skull measurement, etc.

I is anxious to get good opinions on both these matters. He is working up his digging experiences into an article for next issue of our Derbyshire Society's journal, out early next year. He writes to ask me if I think you will be good enough to take the trouble to look at the green & skull if he sent them to you.

If not imposing on your good nature too much I should be grateful for the sake of our Derbyshire Society if you would do it & him this service.

Would you kindly let me have enclosed p. card back, on which I have put my address for this week, & will just say if Mr. Waud may send you his finds or not.

Very truly yours

J. Charles /ot

On second thoughts I send you Waud's letter.

Should you the least care to have a few fragments of Roman pottery (good ~~things~~ rims) that I found at Duffield Castle, & a bit or two of coarse British ware for your Farham Museum? To compare with yours.