If I insisted on my right to allow people crossing my down other than on the proper track: I should drive them considerably out of their way & thus in no small degree defeat the object you have in view.

This I am not at all anxious to do; & under certain conditions I am prepared to allow a track in a particular direction across my down to meet your new road.

I wonder if you could meet me next Saturday at the gate; when I could point out to you on the spot my meaning?

Very Truly Yours

My dear General.

I see you are making a new road straight through your woods terminating on my property at the gate leading on to "Main Down".

I believe your object in making the road is to afford easier access to your property from this part of the country & I'm sure welcome the undertaking.

But where your road adjoins Main-Down, there is no right of way across the Down; the right of way is along under the hedge, adjoining Chettle.
