Sir
I am sorry I can't admit your claim to compensation for inserting my address to the Haverley elections, except for one number as ordered.
Mr. James informs me that according to my desire he requested you to insert the <sup>one next issue</sup> notice in one number. In your copy of Mr. James letter you put the

gradual

word issues in the plural but the expression itself issues is not English, and he denies that he ever wrote the word in the plural number.

The word next means the one following & cannot in any way be taken to imply any continued series if in the company expressly limits the publication to one number of your Journal. If you have not

James, letter perhaps you will pardon it. as you expressed that I wanted for a continuous course of instruction contrary to the meaning of the letter appears to be based on <sup>the supposed use</sup> ~~the~~ letter there would have been no objection in issuing a continuous series of such preliminary addresses in a paper which is not in the district. and I am not prepared any where where I

address
in any paper

Sir, I am sorry I cannot admit your claim to compensation for inserting my address to the Stanley Election except for one ~~insertion~~ number as ordered.

Mr. James informs me that according to my desire he requested you to insert the <sup>address</sup> notice in your next issue. In your copy of Mr. James letter you put the word "issues" in the plural but the expression

"next issues" is not <sup>sense</sup> English and he denies that he ever wrote the word in the plural number. The word "next" <sup>used in this sense</sup> means the one following and cannot in any way be taken to imply any continual series. It, on the contrary, expressly limits the publication to one number of your Journal. If you have Mr. James's letter perhaps you will <sup>be good enough to send</sup> ~~send~~ it <sup>to me</sup> as your impression that I asked for a continuous course of insertions contrary to the wording of the letter appears to be based on the supposed use of a single <sup>s</sup> letter. There could have been no object in issuing a continual series of such preliminary addresses in a paper which is not in the district and I have not inserted any continual series of addresses in any paper.
