

is to be seen in any given locality?

In Stanford's small Guide books there is a little scattered information.

With apologies for thus occupying your valuable time.

Yours faithfully,
W. Herbert Smith
W.S.

from books or batin.
Ans
Jan. 1893
14, STRATFORD PLACE,
OXFORD STREET, W.
14, STRATFORD PLACE,
OXFORD ST. W. 2 Jan. '93
L990

Dear Sir,

I venture to ask if you will kindly tell me whether you know of any kind of index or guide to Roman & Ancient British remains in England & especially within some 80 miles of London?

I am a busy
medical man uninformed
on this subject, but finding delightful recreation in any glimpses of it which occur to me.

The short account
written by you & published (or half hidden) in

Baedeker's Great Britain
conveys the best summary
I have met with of the information I seek.

Is there any fuller
summary such as would enable one for instance in the course of medical work to find what

114. Stratford Place.
Oxford S. W.

D^r Wilberforce Smith desires to make the communication contained on the other side.

He begs that this form of correspondence
may be excused in consideration of the time saved thereby.

Telegrams:
Wilberforce Smith, London.

11 Jan. 93

2990a

Best thanks for your kind reply with information about maps