

£90 a year, some of it requires a good bit of repairs & the whole is held on a life of about 80, he wished you to give some consideration. Make the Property at once, I told him this was quite impossible, but if they wished you to take the Property at once instead of waiting the death of the life & you not make any claim in respect of dilapidations it should have your consideration, he is going to write me further on - The applicant for the second bill has promised to go over it in a few days.
I will write you further in course of post.
I am your very obedt. servant

Dear General Pitt Rivers,

I beg to enclose you the particulars of the amount entered under the heading of Buildings & alterations &c showing how the sum is made up in the year 1881 of £488-11-3 as appeared in the list in Arnold &c.
I also enclose the particulars of the amounts showing how the Buildings & alterations account was made out in the list sent you for the year 1882 together with a list showing the particulars of the items as before referred to in the year 1881 thinking you would require the same, a slight error occurred in some way in preparing the lists of

2/10 - Before preparing the lists on my mentioning the matter to you, you wished these errors to be put under the heading of Buildings

& alterations because it is not an estate payment.

I am just returned from London where I have been to meet the London Mill Company as their lease had expired & to try & arrange the future tenancy but before settling the terms we are going to try & arrange the water right question with Col: Hooley & his Son-in-law.

I also met Sir John Dillon's Solicitor at the Starbuck in reference to his lifehold Property, worth about
